

FARMERS WERE OUT IN FORCE

Institute At Evansville Opened This Morning With Fairly Large Attendance.

ADVICE IS GIVEN TO THE GROWERS

Brainy Men Talked At The Morning Session--Cooking School Held This Afternoon--Many Interesting Facts Detailed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Evansville, Wis., March 12.—Fifty-five farmers from the immediate vicinity of Evansville were in attendance this morning at the opening session of the institute. This afternoon the better half are enjoying the mysteries of the cooking school which is held in the city hall.

William Gilles opened the institute, saying that for many years Evansville had held Farmers' institute here but not until recent years have they had help from the state. He said one of the greatest difficulties found in conducting a Farmers' institute was to find the successful farmer who was able to tell of his prosperity and how he obtained it. He introduced C. W. Bradley of Hudson as conductor of the institute. Mr. Bradley mentioned the fact that this was the period of advance education all along the line. As one method of agricultural education he advocated the use of the institute upon the raising of more livestock, so as to get the necessary fertilizer to replace in the worn-out farms the elements taken out by excessive cropping. He also urged the farmers to grow alfalfa, to sow clean seed. He stated that the exportation station had found from four to five pounds of foul seed in a bushel of grain seed and twenty-two pounds of cockle in one bushel of wheat. The agricultural college advises the farmer to raise his own seed as much as possible and to treat the seed grain for smut. He believed that the Farmers' institute this year would benefit the state of Wisconsin and stated that fully ten thousand dollars has been expended in placing before the public the need of the tuberculin test in bovine tuberculosis.

Mr. Elliott of Ontario, the next speaker, spoke of crop rotation. He said this question is not on livestock but on exhaustion of soil. There has been a wholesale destruction of soil from the time of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers up to the present day. The average number of bushels of corn per acre in Minnesota twenty years ago was twenty-five bushels, for the last five years it has been under eleven. We have no right to impoverish the soil this way for the land is not our own to use at will. We ought to leave the farm to our ancestors in as high a state of fertility as

GATHER TO DISCUSS TEXAS DEVELOPMENT

Two Days Conference Opens in Fort Worth to consider future of Texas.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Fort Worth, Texas, March 12.—All sections of the State were represented here today at the opening of a two day's conference to discuss the future development of Texas along agricultural and commercial lines. The conference results from a call recently issued by the Texas Commercial Societies association. It is intended in reality to give expression to a growing sentiment that the State of Texas, in some of its legislative acts during the past year or two, may have overreached herself in adopting measures hostile to its railroads and other large corporate interests. These persons believe that any further legislation along these lines would tend to check the hitherto wonderful development of the resources and industries of the State. It is proposed that the commercial organizations of the State shall formulate or suggest such measures for the guidance of the legislature as are believed to be for the best interests of the State and with a view to the welfare of the general public.

MANY PRECAUTIONS FOR KING'S SAFETY

First Visit of Spanish King and Queen to Barcelona Marked by Great Precautions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madrid, March 12.—Extraordinary precautions were taken for the safety for King Alfonso and Queen Victoria on the occasion of their visit to Barcelona today. The signals along the entire railway line were tested and a pilot engine preceded the royal train the entire distance. All suspicious characters in Barcelona were taken into custody and the route of the royal procession was guarded by a double curtain of troops. It is said that at the last moment King Alfonso's counselors endeavored to persuade him to give up the journey, but his Majesty in his characteristic manner declined to be frightened by the current rumors of plots against his life. The existing fear of a possible attempt at assassination had been heightened by the appearance of an anonymous placard posted conspicuously about the streets of Barcelona giving notice of an intended attempt on the life of the monarch. Of all the cities of Europe Barcelona is probably the worst hotbed of anarchy. It has long been known as one of the principal headquarters of the international organization and in recent years has the scene of several bomb outrages.

Johnson, prior to his crime, was well known among Atlanta negroes as the "Black Sport." He was a gambler and had been in trouble many times. Two unlikely combinations have followed him during the closing days of his career—Friday and the number thirteen. The murder for which he is to pay the death penalty was committed on Friday, December 6, and he was first sentenced to be hanged on Friday, January 3, and rescheduled to be hanged on Friday, March 13.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE OPENS IN BRODHEAD

Green County Institute Opened in Brodhead This Morning for Two Days' Session.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Brodhead, Wis., March 12.—Owing to the fact that many of those who came to attend the Green County farmers' institute, did not arrive until noon this morning, the session did not open until late. But two of the addresses were delivered. H. E. Roberts of Colfax delivered the first talk, which was on "Soils." Superintendent George McKerrrow of Madison then spoke on "The Horse." In his talk he dwelt particularly on the care and feed of the horse. The meetings are being held in Brodhead's opera-house and the indications are that it will be a large and successful institute.

Owing to the fact that Maud Huntington Booth lectures in Brodhead tonight there will be no evening session of the institute as many wished to hear her.

MINERS STILL TRYING TO DECIDE FUTURE POLICY

National Convention Of United Mine Workers Of America Convenes.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 12.—The national convention of the United Mine Workers of America reconvened in this city today to make another attempt to decide upon a policy to be pursued after March 31, when the existing wage agreement with the operators will expire. Three joint conferences of operators and miners have already been held without result, and six months has been wasted in futile argument and strategic sparring. If no better results are accomplished at the present meeting a general strike in all probability will follow.

Has John Mitchell, retiring president of the United Mine Workers, more influence than Tom L. Lewis, president-elect, who is to take office the first of next month? On the answer is believed to depend the question of whether there will be a general suspension of bituminous coal mining in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The question of the two leaders is to be fought out in the convention which began today, and adherents of both are prepared for a lively contest. If Mitchell carries the convention the operators in Indiana and Illinois will be allowed to win and the suspension will be general.

The operators in Ohio are said to favor a strike. They have millions of tons of coal on hand, and should a strike take place, they believe they can dispose of a large part of it in Indiana and Illinois markets.

The operators in Illinois and Indiana have practically come to an understanding, and they do not want a general suspension. They feel that the situation hinges entirely on whether President Mitchell can carry his policy through the convention.

Three propositions are before the miners' convention for consideration and action. The first is to proceed at once to frame the wage demands, and having completed that task, to issue a call for a joint wage conference between operators and miners of the States interested.

The second proposition is to draft wage demands and issue calls for joint wage conferences with the operators by districts.

The third proposal is to shut down all of the mines in one big strike, and thus try to force settlement by competitive districts.

MRS. CHILDS' VICTORY IS A VERY DECIDED ONE NOW

Court Decides In The Royal Neighbors' Fight In Her Favor.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., March 12.—Judge

MRS. EVA CHILDS. Williams in circuit court dismissed in his entirety the injunction issued against the Wisconsin State Camp of Royal Neighbors, holding that he had no jurisdiction to seat the plaintiff, Rosa Schacht, as a delegate on the ground that the power to seat or refuse to seat a delegate was invested in the State Camp or the officers of the Supreme Camp, subject to an appeal to the Supreme Board of Managers or the Supreme Oracle.

At the meeting held last evening after the injunction served upon the officers and members of the state camp had been discussed in court, Mrs. Eva Childs was elected state oracle and the decision of Judge Williams this morning will practically give her control of the state delegation to the national camp in Chicago in May. Mrs. Mason of Janesville, one of Mrs. Childs' strongest opponents, was not admitted to the hall last evening and it is alleged was roughly treated by those at the door. H. D. Murdoch of Janesville has been Mrs. Childs' campaign manager throughout the struggle.

EVANS' FLEET MADE MAGDALENA HARBOR EARLY IN MORNING

Wireless Message Received Announces Its Safe Arrival in the Mexican Port.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] San Diego, Cal., March 12.—A wireless message received last night by the Point Poma government wireless station was to the effect that Admiral Evans' battleship fleet had arrived off Magdalena Bay early last night. The fleet is almost four days ahead of scheduled time for reaching Magdalena. It is reported on good authority that Evans transmitted word to Washington to the effect that all the ships are in even better condition than at the time when the fleet sailed from Hampton Roads and that he is now ready for any unforeseen emergency that may arise and that the entire fleet is prepared to sail for any destination at an hour's notice. While no additional word had come by wireless from the South Zone zone is expected until well into the night when the strong light waves of the sun make way for other impulses of the wireless flashes.

It is believed here the "American Battle fleet" as it has been referred to by President Roosevelt, is safe in the harbor of Magdalena Bay. The fleet worked its way from the fleet at the wireless station here was to the effect that the ships were off Magdalena Bay, probably a distance of fifty miles or more, and would steam into the bay soon after daylight.

BIG ADVANTAGES FOR JANESVILLE

AS WELL AS THOSE WHO DEAL WITH COMMON CARRIERS.

IN SHIPPERS' ASSOCIATION

Twenty-five Attended Enthusiastic Meeting—Committee Appointed to Raise $1,200 and Launch Organization.

Immediate and possible advantages, both to the members and the municipality in general, of a Janesville Shippers' association, modeled on the lines of the successful Rockford organization, were thoroughly discussed at a meeting called by H. L. McNamara, Andrew J. Gibson and Victor P. Richardson of the Twilight Club committee at the city hall last evening. There were twenty-five prominent local manufacturers and business men in attendance. Mr. McNamara acted as chairman of the meeting and Mr. Gibson, as secretary, and the outcome of the deliberations was the appointment of a committee consisting of H. L. McNamara, George G. Sutherland, J. L. Rootwell, and P. S. Balnes to canvass all the shippers in the city in an effort to raise the $1,200 necessary to establish and maintain the proposed one year, and report at another meeting to be called next Wednesday night. Announcements were made that J. M. Rootwell & Sons would contribute $100; the New Doty Works, $50; and several other concerns, at least $25. Mr. Gibson offers his services without charge for the first year and the tentative plan is to temporarily establish the headquarters at the Hanson Furniture factory, with which concern he is now identified.

Purposes of Organization
To obtain, by united effort, better shipping facilities and rates; to protect members from overcharges and overweight charges by carefully auditing all freight bills and to appraise them of new tariff schedules at the time they are issued, which is generally from 30 to 45 days before they go into effect; combined appeal to the proper railroad officials to correct such habitual shortcomings and abuses as may be found to exist; and in general to keep a check on insurance matters and legislation and furnish information and encouragement to industries which may be seeking a new location, are some of the purposes of such an organization, as outlined by Mr. Gibson.

Need Is Quite Apparent

In the case of the individual shipper errors in freight-billing occur right along and are never rectified, even where an energetic effort is made to audit all bills. Unless it is unusually alert, new tariff schedules go into effect and catch him unaware, as the railroads do not send him any individual advance notice and could scarcely be expected to do so. However, this information is available, as notices have been given in certain quarters from 30 to 45 days prior to enforcement. With such knowledge in his possession the manufacturer, duly warned that his raw material or the transportation of finished products are to cost him more or less, may adjust his prices to fit the new exigencies. Besides the intricate system of rates and schedules which require constant watching, new legislation and rulings of the state commissions must also be taken into consideration. One of the last packages present cited an illustration last evening in the case of a shipment of tobacco from Whitehall, which is located near La Crosse, to Janesville. There is something like a half-rate between La Crosse and this city and he was advised that he might pay the local rate from Whitehall to La Crosse, and with this understanding the La Crosse agent guaranteed the favorable rate of 2 1/2 cents to this destination. The leaf was sent over the Green Bay & Western and the St. Paul and when the time came for a settlement the consignee found that he was charged 42 cents. When he objected and cited the guarantee of the agent, he found that this written stipulation was worthless under the commission's ruling that the published tariff is the only thing that goes, and that he had no redress. Numerous other similar experiences were related. S. C. Cobb told of some of the Janesville Machine Co.'s grievances, and V. P. Richardson, P. S. Balnes, and M. F. Green also contributed to the symposium. Attention was called to the fact that the rate from Janesville to New York is $1.30 a hundred as compared with the Rockford-to-New York rate of 80 cents, and the further fact that Rockford is an inland town, on the main lines of two railroads. Shipping from Chicago to Janesville is actually cheaper than from Chicago to Rockford and yet Rockford gets practically the same eastern rate as Chicago, and Janesville is left in the lurch and severely handicapped, as against its neighbor, in its bid for new industries.

Benefits to Be Derived

Effective work by the Shippers' Association, it was pointed out, would confer lasting benefits not only on the shippers who belonged to it, but on every person living in the city. Combined effort toward having Janesville put on a fair basis and to wards solving the other problems which have been cited would accomplish results where individual attempts have failed, and the railroads also prefer to deal with such a duly authorized bureau. Mr. Gibson told about his personal investigation of the methods in vogue at Rockford. The Shippers' Association there conducts a suite of offices and the secretary and two assistants devote their whole attention to the traffic matters with which the members are concerned. A complete set of the tariff sheets of every transportation company, railroad or steamship, in the United States is on file. If a railroad assumes an arbitrary or unfair attitude, all business is switched to its competitor, until it can be brought to time. Refunds made on freight bills where overcharges have been made are collected by the treasurer and credited to the individual shipper and at the end of the fiscal year are deducted from his membership fee. Mr. Gibson recommended a membership charge so graduated as to attract to the association the small shipper as well as the large one. Thomas O. Howe thought the fee should be the same for all and there was some discussion on this point. In order to conduct the business of the association on a systematic plan each member will probably be requested to mail in a stamped envelope, at the close of each day's business, all the freight bills paid that day and all the bills of lading, showing weights.

GARDENERS PLAN FOR THE SUMMER

NOW IS THE TIME TO PLANT THE SEEDS IN BOXES.

IMPETUS GIVEN LOVERS OF

The Beautiful by the Talk of Pleasure Drives, New Greenhouses and First Warm Days.

Janesville promises to blossom into a veritable Garden of Eden this next summer if all the amateur gardeners who now plan their gardens materialize. There are many in the city who have their little vegetable garden every year, where the early lettuce, the radish and other table greens are grown but this summer the common garden truck promises to be surpassed by the display of flowers. The sudden impetus given is perhaps due to the work done in the city parks last summer and the plans talked of for the Janesville Park and Pleasure Drive association. Then, too, the prospect of a new greenhouse has excited many to try their hand at growing dainty blossoms and many have even begun their work by planning just what space in their gardens will be devoted to flowers.

The spring is the time the average amateur gardener makes his worst mistakes. Too often he buys seed which he does not handle properly, with the result that bare spots in the garden show where he expected beautiful blossoms. The young plants that he expected to flower are killed by the hot sun or choked under heavy or dry soil.

The amateur who would rival the professional florist in the radiance of his garden should make a start now by sowing seed of many kinds of showy annuals in boxes or pots to be kept indoors for awhile. The boxes should have holes for drainage in the bottom but should not be so open as to keep the soil dry. Ordinary garden soil may be used in the bottom but at the top there should be a lighter soil, well mixed. The small seed should be sown on the surface, then fine soil spread over them and pressed down, but not so hard as to cause the soil to bake.

Course seed can best be planted in little drills, or each seed pressed down into the soil and the whole covered with a thin layer of earth. The soil should be gently sprinkled with water immediately after the planting. Only the quantity of water which the soil can absorb without becoming soggy should be given. The box should be watered subsequently whenever the soil becomes dry a little below the surface.

It is a good practice to sow the seed in rows, as this enables the soil to be easily stirred to prevent it baking. The box should be set by the window and given plenty of light but at the same time shielded from hot sunlight. When the plants have grown to a fair size it will be warm enough outdoors to set them out in the garden.

In a hotbed are sown the first seed of the year, lettuce, radishes, and the gardener's favorite annual flowers long before the danger of frost bite to exposed plants is over; and when the inexperienced planter is sowing seed in the open ground, the hotbed covers or will have well established seedlings to set out and will have flowers and vegetables a week or more before his neighbor.

The hotbed is nothing but a board edged pit in which there is fermenting manure covered with several inches of soil. The pit is covered with glass sashes which usually measure 3 or 4 feet wide by 6 feet in length. At night the glass may be covered with boards or straw mats for protection. The frame may be of 1-inch boards which should be a foot wide at one end and eighteen inches wide at the other so as to give the glass a slope enabling the water to run off. If thicker boards are used the frame will be heavier and more lasting.

Heavy manure is best for hot beds. It should be collected a short time before using and turned once or twice. It should then be stacked from one to three feet deep, two feet wider and longer than the sash, and the frame should be set on the manure. Four or five inches of soil should then be placed inside the frame on the manure.

The temperature within the frame will rise for a few days and then become cooler; when it is about 60 degrees seeds may be planted or young plants set in the bed. The season for hot-beds varies with the longitude. For most purposes it may best be made in the latter part of February or the first of March.

MISS ROBINA LEONARD, CHAMPION SKATER.

Cleveland, March 12.—Miss Robina Leonard of this city is out after the national championship among lady ice skaters. She has never been defeated. Allen I. Blanchard, honorary president of the W. S. A. states he never saw a woman who could touch Miss Leonard for speed and grace in skating. In the championships held here lately she won so easily that, according to Mr. Blanchard, her opponents seemed to be standing still.

50 Years Old

I have in my shop a set of chairs more than 50 years old that have been sent to me to be refinished. They are the old style mahogany chairs and have been scraped and washed thoroughly, refinished, and reupholstered with green glaze plush. They look like new now and will last for another 50 years and will make a family bedroom. The cost is only a trifle and I will be glad to submit prices on any work of this kind which you may have or on any work in the way of repairing, upholstering, or refashioning of old colonial or antique furniture. No better work in Janesville or in the state. We can handle the work better now than later in the spring when the rush comes, if you have anything in this line phone me NOW. New phone 616.

Pictures showing two new safety devices to be used in rescuing injured miners.

New York, March 12.—The recent mine disaster and the ever increasing number of deaths in railroad wrecks has awakened public sentiment to the realization of the need of safety devices. The inventive genius of the country is beginning to turn toward constructing devices which will prevent loss of life and injury with marked success. So much interest is being taken in the east that there is to be held here early in April an exposition which will exhibit all the safety devices now known. This is to be held under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History and it is the object of this exposition to exhibit these devices in a practical way which will appeal to the manufacturer and to the employer. The Rev. Joseph Strong, president of the American Institute of Social Service, has compiled some very interesting figures comparing the loss of life and injuries received in the manufacturing industries of the United States with various wars and battles. According to these figures our peaceful vocations cause more loss of life every two days, than this nation lost in battle during the war with Spain.

"In the United States," Dr. Strong asserts, "there are killed in four years 80,000 more than fell in battle or died of wounds during the four years of the civil war. Incredible as it may seem, yet it is no less true that in the same length of time we kill 53 per cent more people than two armies could destroy equipped with all the weapons of death that ingenuity could then devise and making death and destruction their eager business."

"The six bloodiest battles of the civil war were Gettysburg, Spottsylvania, Wilderness, Antietam, Chickamauga and Chattanooga. The total number killed, wounded and missing in these six battles aggregated less than 105,000, while the number killed and injured on our railways, during the year ended June 30, 1906, the last for which we have any report, was 108,321. And it must be remembered that the total number of casualties in all the various industries of the United States is about five times as large as the number of accidents on our railways."

In a letter addressed to Dr. Strong, President Roosevelt comments on the exposition and says: "As modern civilization is constantly creating artificial dangers to life, limb, and health, it is imperative upon us to provide new safeguards against the new perils. In legislation and in our use of safety devices for the protection of workmen we are far behind European peoples, and in consequence in the United States the casualties attending upon peaceful industries exceed those which would happen un-

Salt Lake City's Monument to The Gulls.

The people of Salt Lake City propose to erect a monument commemorating the harvesting of the first intermountain crops by the Mormon pioneers in the summer of 1848. Just before the crops matured great hordes of crickets swooped down upon them from the north. Quick destruction was threatened, when suddenly from the west came an immense flight of gulls which settled in the fields and remained for several weeks, destroying the crickets and saving the crop. The earliest Utah legislation included laws declaring the gull to be a sacred bird and placing a heavy penalty on any one caught molesting it. Many thousands, nest in the desolate islands of Great Salt Lake. The enrichment at the top of the Corinthian column that takes the place of the conventional leaves is of alighting gulls, and the bronze panels at the base carry the story of the planting of the first western crop, the despair of the planter when the harvest was being eaten by crickets, showing his wife weeding a field in a despairing effort to beat back the devastating hordes, and the joy again when it was finally gathered in after the gulls had come. Another panel shows the planting of the first crop ever raised by irrigation by the Mormons in Utah, and a final panel shows the harvesting of the crop.

ADMIRAL TOUCHARD

Paris, France, March 12.—The appointment of Admiral Touchard as French Ambassador to the court of St. Petersburg is regarded very hopefully here, where it is realized the retiring ambassador, M. Rouvier, was not altogether a success. Touchard was the diplomat who permitted himself to criticize the Russian court in private correspondence, with the result that an international row was precipitated along very delicate lines. The new ambassador and his wife speak Russian fluently and in naval circles Admiral Touchard has earned the respect and confidence of the nation. The threatened breach between Germany and Russia makes the post of French ambassador at St. Petersburg an exceedingly delicate one, to say nothing of the French situation, and for the sake of the dual alliance it is to be hoped that the appointment will meet with all the success that is anticipated in well informed circles.

RANDOLPH GUTZ.

The most phenomenal target shooting of the year has been done by Randolph Gutz, in the indoor 22-Caliber Rifle League held in Rochester, he made a world's record of the bull's eye target with a perfect score of 0 degrees. This target consists of merely a black carton, 4 inches in diameter, without lines or rings and must be shot exactly in the center at a distance of 75 feet to make the above score. Randolph Gutz of Jefferson county, New York, was unknown up to about four years ago among good shots generally. The first prominent tournament he attended was an indoor match at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1905. At the Zittler Rifle club shot, which followed in New York, he made a high score on the ring target, and also on the extremely difficult Zimmerman target.

"His Patients Stick"

Amongst the anxieties and cares of a large dental practice, it comes very pleasant to have a patient say, as one said yesterday:

"Dr. Richards, I have come all the way from Chicago to have you do my work."

"The work you did for me three years ago is so satisfactory that I came back for more."

"I could have had it done there, but I knew what kind of work you would do for me, and I feel safe to trust myself in your hands."

Dr. Richards has been established now seven years in Janesville, and his patients stick to him because his business policy is to do

FOUND SISTER HERE AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Brother of Miss Mamie Drum, Who Parted with Her in Infancy at Orphan Asylum, Rewarded after Long Search.

With the recent departure for New York City of Miss Mamie Drum, adopted daughter of Charles H. Drum, who resided at 261 Cherry street, there has come to light an unusual little story of human interest. Nearly two decades ago when the young lady and her brother were infants, they were adopted by widely separated families from a Catholic orphan home. The brother, when he came to years of understanding and commenced to earn his own way in the world, commenced a long search for his sister in Chicago, where he has lately made his home, he chanced one day to become acquainted with a family who had moved there from Janesville and who were able to give him some rather vague particulars regarding the circumstances of a child having been adopted into one of the families living in their neighborhood at the time they resided here. Acting on this information, he came here several weeks ago and instituted inquiries for a Miss Mary Sullivan, whom he claimed as his sister. After one amusing contretemps, in which a young lady who had always been known by that name emphatically disclaimed him as a brother, he finally located the lost one at the Drum household and there was a dramatic reunion. The young lady has gone east to make her home with a long-lost aunt who has also been assisting in a search of over ten years.

Picture at upper left shows palace at Lisbon, near Lisbon, in which King Manuel of Portugal now resides. Upper right, the Portuguese university at Lisbon. Lower left, Duke of Braganza. Lower right, Duke of Oporto. Center, King Manuel, the reigning king of Portugal.

Lisbon, March 12.—The prison comparatively quiet since the murder of King Carlos and Prince Luiz is only a hill before the storm. The mystery surrounding the murder of the king and crown prince is not likely ever to be completely cleared. For the present it is much preferred by the Portuguese government that the assassination should be considered the work of excited individuals rather than a general plot. It is now known definitely that a republic was to have been declared the night of the murder and that the masses and many educated enthusiasts are anxious to declare a republic now. The young king and his mother have changed radically the policy of the late King Carlos and it has been hoped this change would appease the people so that they would be satisfied to let the throne remain.

The students at the universities, as in Russia and other countries where revolution is being agitated are playing a considerable role in Portugal and another factor in the situation, the church, may become prominent. Roman Catholicism is the state religion and the people are Catholics, but not clerical.

One act of repression will entail another. The cry will be raised that reaction has come and an explosion will be inevitable. In this event the throne may be compelled to establish a second dictatorship. The real weakness of the monarchy in Portugal seems to be that it is too heavy. With its territory shrunken, its wealth withered, the national credit bankrupt 15 years ago, the bureaucracy and the courts are maintained on a scale almost as extensive as in the days of Portuguese world dominion and splendor.

Seven magnificent royal palaces, the Necessidades, the royal city residence, Ajuda, the palace of the dowager queen, Belem, Queluz and Cascaes on the seashore and the marvelous palaces of Chitra and Pena, in addition to the shooting palaces at Villavieja and elsewhere, are kept up with all the expense involved in the constant transfers of the large court from one place to another.

The court itself has a hierarchy and a ceremonial etiquette second only to that of Russia and Austria, and the personnel is considerably larger than that of Germany. It is here that the pruning hook must be applied in the reorganization of a country where half the taxes collected go to pay the interest on the state debt.

This oppression has bred anarchy and revolt and today the young king and his mother, who are anxious to serve the people and want to do right, must suffer for the wrongdoing of others. It is thought a republic may be declared in the near future and a civil war ensue.

No matter what happens in Portugal foreign intervention to sustain the monarchy is not anticipated. Both Spain, its neighbor, and Great Britain which practically dominates the foreign policies of Portugal, would undoubtedly like to see the regime sustained, as would probably other powers whose subjects have business interests in the country, but Great Britain, it is believed, would not attempt to interfere in the internal politics of the country.

She will probably continue to keep ships at Lagos or in the harbor of Lisbon or in the harbor of Oporto to protect her subjects and the Portuguese government probably will be given to understand that it can count upon Great Britain's "moral support" as long as it keeps within certain bounds and Great Britain can be relied upon to permit the intervention of another power.

If anything should happen to the young king the crown would fall probably on one of King Carlos' brothers, either the Duke of Braganza or the Duke of Oporto. Still, it cannot be overlooked that in the mysterious disappearance of human events the hopes of Don Miguel, the pretender, are very much brightened by the double assassination at Lisbon.

JACK JOHNSON ON LEFT, TOMMY BURNS AT RIGHT.

London, Eng., March 12.—Now that Johnson and Burns have signed up for a match for the heavyweight championship of the world in England, there is much speculation among local followers as to who is the better man. Burns has made a great reputation for himself here and is popular. On the other hand, Johnson is looked upon by many as the better fighter and has a strong following. Burns would like it to be a fight to a finish, but it is not likely the authorities will allow any contest going over 20 to 25 rounds. Burns is taking things quietly, at present, doing just enough work to keep himself in condition. He will remain at Mumpsdown until March 12, when he will go to Dublin for his fight on St. Patrick's day with Johnny Rough. He is confident of his ability to defeat Johnson and it is thought Rough will not prove more effective than "Gunner" McElrath or Jack Palmer.

In Looking For Suits

While a great many women depend on this store for suits, skirts, coats and kindred lines, there are others who like to look about town to see what others are showing. To these we say, make your visits to the other stores first, then come here where you will see beyond question the best styles and the most. This may sound like big talk from a small store, but the records of the suit department warrant it. Just at present the showing of suits numbers about two hundred of the season's best styles, all selected personally in the New York market and possessing that individuality desired by critical women. The size range is complete, 34 to 44. Also suits for misses and little women—

MARVELOUS TRIP; WONDERFUL ROAD

CAPT. NORCROSS WRITES OF THE GREAT FLORIDA RAILROAD.

FROM MAINLAND TO ISLAND

Letters from Southland Describe Wonders Actually Witnessed by the Writer in Construction.

Following is one of Captain Play Norcross' graphic letters of the south, where he is spending the winter. The Captain has just taken a wonderful trip on the new Florida railroad that runs down the east coast from mainland to island keys and describes with much interest. The following is the letter:

Thomasville, La., March 9, 1908.
The Eastern Coast of Florida, from St. Augustine to Miami, a distance of 330 miles, is the most popular winter resort in this country.

There is nothing about the coast itself to attract anybody; most of the land is level, monotonous waste of marsh, thickly covered with a swampy growth of underbrush, some pine trees, and occasionally a truck cane, which has been brought to the line of profit making, by the exercise of patient persistence, and the outlay of money for fertilizer.

The climate is delightfully warm and sweet, and very acceptable to the Northerner who has become so lazy or ill that he dreads the tonic of a cold winter.

Everybody knows about St. Augustine, the oldest city on the Continent.
It has a house in plain view, built 340 years ago by French Huguenots. It has one of the old-fashioned forts with mounds, drawbridges, bastions and towers.

Under Spanish rule, the captured Indians worked for more than sixty years in quarrying the Capolina Stone for its erection.

In 1821, it became the property of the United States, and the old name El Castillo de San Marco was changed to Fort Marion. It covers several acres of ground and is kept in good condition by our government, not as a defense, for it has no value whatever as a fort, but as a landmark or object lesson in the ancient art of fortification. It is really quite a pleasant experience to climb into one of its little watch towers and look out upon the ocean through the same hole that the Spanish sentry used several centuries ago. A small section of the old city wall and a few round towers include the new order of things. The ocean and automobile may be seen on the same street.

The old city market where slaves were sometimes sold, is now a lozing place for visitors. The Little Spring where Ponce de Leon drank, and hoped thereby to renew his youth, is still flowing, and the enterprising woman who has charge of it, is selling the same kind of water at ten cents a glass, with a picture of the spring thrown in as a bonus.

A few miles out of the city, by railroad, are the old quarters, the modern light house, and the largest and finest collection of alligators, crocodiles and rattlesnakes to be found in the United States. All day long these alligators sleep in the sunshine, but as the day ends they clumpily crawl, one after another in the sloping plank and drop into the big long tanks of water provided for them.

To this famous land of sunshine and flowers, the King of Spain sent his brave warriors in the hope of extending his Empire and increasing his revenue.

Moved by a similar ambition, Henry M. Flagler, has for more than twenty years been engaged in developing the Eastern Coast of Florida. He belongs to the Standard Oil Company, or rather a good bunch of stock of that Company belongs to him, so that he does not suffer for want of funds as did the Spanish King when his men were hungry here. It is said that Mr. Flagler has already invested more than a hundred millions in his Florida enterprises. He does not do things in a small or penurious way. His plans have the elements of size and enterprise about them. The more difficult they are, the more attractive for him.
His pace here is not slow and hesitant. He does not look at things in the light of a six foot tall, has thin white hair and mustache and blue eyes, and as the nose as was ever put upon a man's face. He takes an easy gait, and evidently is not concerned as to what people think of him. A last year's straw hat, and plain suit, look well on him. It is easy to say that a man with an abundance of money can do anything he desires. Many such men don't even desire, much except to gratify their own selfish tastes. This man, however, is a worker. During last summer, he put in most of his time on an old Mississippi steamer, which he brought around to his Ocean Railway in Florida, for the purpose of moving flat-boats from place to place, as he desired. While aboard that old boat, day or night, he was "Johnny on the spot" all the while. Some of his men told me that nothing escaped his notice.

No attempt was made to build his Ocean Railroad by contract. It is largely under water and out of sight.
Contractors would not care to bid on such an uncertain project. He has selected skillful, experienced managers, but he has his say on all the plans and details.

He has a good record as a hotel builder. In fact, that was his first work.
He had a hotel at Atlantic Beach, but it did not suit him, so he put it on a raft of floats, then put a steamer in front, and gave the big building a 500 mile ocean ride to Key West.

SPRING IS NEAR

at hand, and if you're like you will be getting rid of the impurities collected in the system during the winter months by taking a short course of the Bitters. It is wonderful the amount of good it can do at this particular season.

This list of nine elegant hotels extends from Atlantic Beach, down the East Coast to Miami, and includes two at Nassau. The most beautiful and elaborate, is the Ponce de Leon at St. Augustine. This is not only a very luxurious and richly appointed hotel, but the structure itself is symbolic, and suggestive of Spanish history in the days when Spain owned, or thought she owned a very large part of North America. The arched gateways and the ornate, square towers with curved windows of peen hail design, are said to imitate the baleares of a Mohammedan Mosque.
The shell patterns and spouting mermaids about to look at. So too, the very pleasant and other decorations, as well as the fine designs or plans in the divisions of the lower story into offices, drawing rooms and other apartments.
It's companion hotel is "the Alcazar," not so large, but fully as fine and elaborate. Men who know about such things say that it is built in the Spanish Renaissance style. I fancy it has a Moorish appearance. Its court is surrounded by an Arcade. Offices, and the shops open upon this. The building is four stories high, and the entrance is flanked by towers. On warm moonlight evenings, when the jambes of these two hotels are busy, the courtyards are playland, and the air is fragrant with roses and nardus, one can easily believe that he is in some ancient fairy land.

Partly down the coast is "The Ormond," which holds up the good record of all Flagler's hotels. Next on the coast is Palm Beach, 243 miles south of St. Augustine, where we have the Royal Poinciana with rooms for 1500 guests, and the "Breakers," with capacity for 600. These two buildings are planned on the outside than the two at St. Augustine, but in all of the inside appointments, they are as grand and elaborate, if not more so.

Evidently this is Mr. Flagler's favorite spot. Here he has built the beautiful, great home known as "White Hall." He had a son and daughter by his first wife, but the daughter died by several years ago. To her memory he has erected a most exquisite memorial church at St. Augustine. The second wife was divorced on the ground of her insanity. It is not easy to describe the Palm Beach enterprise.
Facing east upon the ocean shore, a half mile from the Gulf stream, stands "The Breakers." When I was there in February many of the guests were bathing in the surf, many others were sitting around in the warm white sand, and others grumped about in the immense verandas smoking and talking a nip of scotch with something light better to help while away the time between meals.

Here, too, are fine tennis courts and golf grounds, and they do say that this is the place where another kind of game is played on the green, and that it beats Monte Carlo.

One man, parted with forty thousand in one night, and another fellow "staid in" until, when the season ended, he was out $150,000.

I was told by a perfectly reliable party that the profits from the bar of the Royal Poinciana and "The Breakers" for the season of 1907 were $270,000. At first I did not believe it, but I submitted the statement to a Philadelphia broker. He mentioned the fancy prices which he paid on imported liquors and cigars, and the amount sold each day and night for about four months, and concluded that the statement was entirely plausible. A half mile west of "The Breakers" is the Royal Poinci-ana, an enormous structure, facing to the west on Lake Worth, a most charming little body of water, running nearly north and south and parallel with the ocean, a half mile or more to the east. This lake separates the quiet town of West Palm Beach on the west of the lake, from the higher grounds owned by Mr.
Flagler, on the east of the lake and between the lake and the ocean, and which contain those two great hotels and "White Hall."

I doubt if there is anything more attractive than those some grounds. They are large and impressive. They are in a warm delicious climate. They have been laid out by a most skillful artist, who was not limited in the matter of expense.
To these grounds have been brought every shrub or tree which could grow in this latitude, no matter where on earth it was found. Here is the live oak, with its footstools of gray moss, in strong contrast to the smooth slopes of green grass. Here are the wide cement walks bordered by low palms, a most wonderful tree in its glossy green bark, its slender, and foliage. Here, too, are coconut groves in full fruit; also parks of tropical flowers and banks of bloom.

Between these two great hotels are wide, hard, smooth avenues for nei-trons, bicycles and automobiles, and for a one-mile trolley car. Aside from this one mile, the hoof of horse or cow or other animal is not permitted to tread on this rare estate, dedicated to pleasure, and pleasure alone.

Beautiful beaches ply up and down Lake Worth.
The Royal Poinciana is about 1000 feet long, high as a barn on the outside, but full of beauty on the inside, and full of beauty on the outside.
It has moderate priced hotels, and pleasant little tourist homes, where life is more quiet and inexpensive.
Mr. Flagler has given to this place a fine cemetery ground. It is said that Joe Jefferson, who spent the latter years of his life at Palm Beach, assisted in the enterprise. However that may be, it bears the marks of Mr. Flagler's manner of doing things.
After putting up an iron fence and gates about it, he covered it with good black dirt, brought for many miles, so as to have green grass for the surface. There is not a mound in it. All level. Mr. Flagler paid the bill of $70,000. He also has here a pleasure beach of sixty-five acres mostly covered with white sand. It is the most thrifty spot I have seen.

Further to the south, at Miami, 360 miles from St. Augustine, Mr. Flagler has another immense hotel—"The Royal Palm." This is the last one on the east coast. It has rooms for five hundred, and is as fine as the others in equipment and surroundings. There is nothing small or pinched about it.
Flagler's railroad reached this spot, eleven years ago, when it was a little trading station. Now it is a city of 50,000 people. It was so when we were there in early February that the men were carrying straw hats and tins shoes. The downtown boast of their fine bank, schools and docks, but they omit their most important asset, which is, after all, their warm sweet climate. Northern men become lazy and sleepy under its influence.

Hotels and boarding-houses on every corner. Streets of native white stone, with plenty of dust. We went up the Miami river to see the gardens of to-matos and strawberries, and to get a peep at the Everglades extending a hundred miles to the west, south and north, a vast swampy marsh, with a few Indians in sole possession, which were left there after their tribe had been taken across the Mississippi.

Miami seemed for a while the southern limit, but hereafter, under the mighty power of Flagler's will and money, it will be a way station on his railroad which is already completed to Knights Key, a point in the ocean 112 miles south of Miami, and is partially built 47 miles further from Knights Key to Key West.

The first regular trip was on the 6th of February, 1908. I was one of a few to go the day before. The road is a wonder in every way, but especially as an illustration of the fact that one strong man with money can do more than a hundred who can never quite agree among themselves, and without, are just a little jealous of each other.

Mr. Flagler began his work in Florida twenty-three years ago, and in his development he has already expended a very large sum of money. This ocean railroad of his has already cost more than all his other work here. It is his road. He planned it, and has paid for it. Some single miles of it cost a half million.

The Panama canal will be a big ditch 36 miles long with several very expensive locks. Its width will be from 200 to 1000 feet, and its depth will vary from thirty to forty-five feet.
It will have huge dams, and it must provide for the high water of the Chagres river, but it is all in plain sight. If there is a break anywhere it can be seen.

A part of this ocean railroad of Mr.
Flagler's is built in shallow water from Key to Key, but another large section of it rests upon rock embankment and is reinforced by concrete arch viaduct construction. There are a few 25-foot openings to permit the passage of small craft, and there are also drawbridges for larger vessels.
For about six miles we have concrete arch viaduct. The longest one from Long Key to Cooch Key is 10,500 feet.
The water is from ten to thirty feet deep. All material such as broken stone and concrete is shipped from Miami.

It would seem a comparatively easy task to make a proper foundation upon land, but when this base must be secured in deep water, and be wide enough and strong enough to carry a fill, which supports the rails thirty-one feet above the surface of the water, and that too in a mean low water level, and that too in the southern cyclone beland of the southern cyclone which sweep this coast with terrible force, then we get some idea of what is required to make this section safe enough, so that the passengers in a fullman car can ride safely out of sight of land, in a storm which will beat the waves against the windows.
The engineers say that they have accomplished it. I hope so; anyway it is a pleasure to take this ride in good weather. I cannot be so sure about stormy weather.

A thing of risk or danger seems to add zest to any game or enterprise, and so I presume Mr. Flagler's hope, that this route to Cuba, will be the most popular one on the continent, will be fulfilled.

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheu-

U. S. FLEET NEARS BAY OF MAGDALENA

VESSELS ARE LESS THAN 200 MILES FROM HARBOR.

SIGNALS ARE EXCHANGED

Point Loma (Cal.) Station Unable, However, to Get Messages Because of Peculiarity of Air Waves—Tara to Rest.

San Diego, Cal., Mar. 12.—The American fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, was Thursday less than 200 miles south of Magdalena bay, lower California, and should put into that island protected harbor late Thursday evening.

No reports arrival will be available, however, even for the department at Washington until Friday. The navy wireless station at Point Loma, which is equipped with the strongest instruments and is in charge of the most capable of the navy's operators, has never been able to communicate with a vessel at Magdalena bay well until after the setting of the sun. The best work is done after midnight. It is explained that the light waves during the day overcome the other influences of the wireless in long-distance efforts and that communication by day seldom is maintained over a space of more than 400 miles.

Far from San Diego. Magdalena bay is 620 miles in an air line from San Diego. The Point Loma wireless station, which is just across an arm of the bay from this city, was in communication with the fleet Wednesday, and again exchanged signals with the flagship Connecticut. The exact position of the vessels was not indicated in the earlier dispatches, which were of a strictly confidential nature and in cipher, but the ships are said to be maintaining a 10½-knot speed and this, it is estimated here, would bring them to within less than 200 miles from the Magdalena goal.

Rest for the Tara.

The men of the battleships' crews probably will be given a day or two of rest after the long run from Callao, Peru, which was left February 29, before the strenuous work of target practice in divisions, of which there are four, comprising four vessels each. It will rest with Admiral Evans as to whether the divisions are sent to the range in regular order or as circumstances dictate. Admiral Evans himself has command of the first division, which includes the Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont and Louisiana. Admiral Emory is in command of the second division comprising the Georgia, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Virginia.

Thomas Has One Command.

Admiral Thomas, the second squadron commander, who acted at many of the South American shore functions as the representative of Admiral Evans, is also commander of the third division of the fleet. His flagship is the Minnesota and the remaining members of the division are the sister ships Ohio, Maine and Missouri. The fourth division is commanded by Rear Admiral Sperry, whose flag floats from the truck of the Alabama. The Illinois, Kentucky and Kearsarge complete the command. The record target practice work will be done with only four ships on the range at one time, but after it is completed will come the battle tactics and fleet maneuvers with every ship in line.

GOTCH VS. "HACK."

Two Famous Heavyweight Wrestlers Matched at Last.

FOR WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP

"Russian Lion," Never Defeated, Will Meet a Good Man in Gotch, the American Champion—Men Will Wrestle For $10,000 Purse.

Not since the days of William Muldoon has the United States developed a wrestler who could successfully cope with foreign grapplers on the mat. In the eighties that marvel of physical development met in turn Japs, Russians, Greeks and, in fact, any nationality whose representatives came to this country, and their shoulders went down in one-two-three order. American wrestling enthusiasts have yearned for another Muldoon. There is a revival of wrestling in Europe, and with the coming of Hackenschmidt, America is to experience a renewed interest in the mat game.

The stars and stripes must also or fall with Frank Gotch. He is the acknowledged premier wrestler of this country today, and his coming match with the "Russian Lion" will be awaited with feverish excitement throughout the civilized world.

The two men will meet on the mat in this country on some day between April 1 and April 5. Just where the match will be held is not definitely decided, but William W. Wittig of Milwaukee, who has arranged the meeting, says that, being unable to secure Madison Square Garden or any other suitable place in New York, it probably will be held in Chicago, although Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis would be considered.

The articles of agreement were signed simultaneously in New York and London and confirmed by cable. Hackenschmidt signed for himself, while Mr. Wittig affixed his signature for Gotch and deposited $10,000 to bind the match. Hackenschmidt will arrive in this country about March 15 and at his own request and for training purposes will give six or seven exhibitions previous to his meeting with Gotch, the only condition being that the exhibitions must end a week before his match. Mr. Wittig will arrange to hold one of these exhibitions in New York, while others may be scheduled for Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

The big match will be for a purse of $10,000. Up to this time no side wager has been arranged, but Hackenschmidt is said to be willing to cover any reasonable amount that Gotch may elect. The conditions provide for a meeting at catch-as-catch-can, best two out of three falls. Pin falls and tying falls will not count, and the struggle hold will be barred.

Hackenschmidt, called the "Russian Lion," has never been beaten so far as can be remembered. He is a monster in size, strong as an ox and clever withal. He defeated Jenkins among others when he was over here and has made a clean sweep abroad. Recently he defeated Joe Rogers, Tom O'Rourke's protégé, in London with comparative ease. Rogers is not considered in a class with Jenkins and Gotch, who rank as the best men in this country.

Hackenschmidt and Gotch have never met on the mat, and for that reason the meeting will arouse widespread interest in this country and abroad. Gotch is a much smaller man than his big opponent, but is quicker, more agile and cleverer, and this may count in his favor.

Hackenschmidt will be the favorite in all probability, but Gotch will not lack for followers, as many of those interested in the sport will pin their faith to him on account of his well known cleverness, believing that this will more than make up for the "Russian Lion's" remarkable strength and bulk.

Gotch has been pining for a meeting with Hackenschmidt for some time and now that the match has been made will bend every effort to get in condition to defeat his rival.

The foal from this mating ought to be about as good as any we can produce in this country.

PROBE BARES WAYS OF "STANDARD OIL"

ALLEGED TRADE METHODS SHOWN IN OUSTER SUIT.

ALL POINTS ARE FOUGHT

Attorney Declares That Dealings Do Not Come Under Interstate Commerce—Based on Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Cleveland, O., Mar. 12.—Methods of meeting competition and gaining the oil trade of a locality were testified to by Charles E. Farrell of Cohoes, N. Y., and John J. Shaw of Syracuse, Ind., before Special Examiner Franklin Morris here Wednesday. The testimony was brought out by former District Attorney C. B. Morrison of Chicago, who is conducting the present hearing for the government in its ouster proceedings against the Standard Oil company. Attorney Morris Rosenthal objected to all of the testimony given on the grounds that the acts testified to were committed within a state and did not enter into interstate commerce. The suit of the government is based upon the Sherman anti-trust law and was begun in the United States circuit court at St. Louis November 15, 1906. The leading spirits of the Standard Oil company and about 70 subsidiary companies are defendants.

Evidence Heard Much.

The evidence, which has been heard in New York, Albany and Washington, is being taken by Mr. Morris and the final decree may be based upon his recommendations. The Cleveland hearing, which began Wednesday and which doubtless will be the last, relates principally to general points in the whole prosecution. Charles E. Farrell was the first witness. He said he worked for the Standard Oil company several years, up to 13 months ago. He said he was taken from his regular duties at Binghamton, N. Y., and sent to Onondaga, N. Y., to operate a tank wagon, selling to the consumers direct. There, he said, he entered into competition with the Tyndal Oil company, an independent concern. First, he said, he bought his oil of the Tyndal company, paying the regular wholesale price, eight cents a gallon, and sold it to the citizens at the same rate.

Tells of Litigation.

"Were there no profits for you?" Mr. Morrison asked.

"My wages and expenses were paid by Mr. William Mason, the Standard Oil agent at Binghamton," Mr. Farrell answered.

"What was the result?"

"The merchants began cutting prices and fighting among themselves for the trade. My wagon bore the sign of the Tyndal company. The merchants became angry at that company for allowing me to do that and they stopped selling me oil."

"Then what did you do?"

"Mr. Mason sent me oil and I continued to sell at the same price."

"Then what?"

"The competition became so keen that some merchants gave oil away."
